

EncircaSM Yield Nitrogen App

Track the nitrogen status of your fields in real time while in the field

Knowledge is Power

When it comes to managing nitrogen, the more you know—the more you're empowered to make critical decisions at the right times that impact crop yield. Many different factors can determine the availability of nitrogen for your crops. This makes it very difficult to know where more nitrogen might be needed and where it's not—across each field and through the season.

The EncircaSM Yield Nitrogen Service leverages EncircaSM services proprietary soil classifications, past yield data, weather information, and more to provide you with nitrogen levels by distinct Decision Zones in your fields at different crop stages. This information is now available to you real-time and in the field with the new EncircaSM Yield Nitrogen mobile app.

Real-Time Insights

Nitrogen field dashboard displays current nitrogen status for each field to help make quick decisions that can impact yield and profitability

Toggle between crop stages to see nitrogen status at different growth stages.

Follow me feature provides a detailed view of nitrogen information as you move through different Decision Zones in the field

EncircaSM services provide estimates and management suggestions based on statistical and agronomic models. Encirca services are not a substitute for sound field monitoring and management practices. Individual results may vary and are subject to a variety of factors, including weather, disease and pest pressure, soil type, and management practices.

Field-by-Field Weather

Need detailed weather information for a field? The EncircaSM Yield Nitrogen App has it. You can get precipitation, average temperature, and growing degree units over different time periods—including the last 24 hours and up through the entire growing season.

Make a Note of It

Simply hold down on a Decision Zone to automatically launch the handy notes feature. From there, you can type notes and attach or take pictures. Your note will be tagged with the geo-location you press. You can easily share your observations with other users or your Encirca certified services agent if you choose.
